

Special Issue

Proceeding of the 3rd Annual International Conference on Information and Sciences (27-28 December 2023), University of Fallujah, Iraq

Preface

The University of Fallujah (UoF) has launched multiple community reach out initiatives in coincidence with the post-war stabilization period. From women empowerment, environment recovery, demining, public health awareness to job creation projects and enhancing local institutional performance, UoF has been a fighter in advancing the local life. Since its founding, UoF has offered quality education to multiple rising generations who contribute to an advanced Iraq. The UoF administration and board of trustees, in addition to the 2023 International Conference on Information and Sciences (AICIS'23-<https://aic23.uofallujah.edu.iq/>) steering committee and chairmanship, would like to extend their innermost appreciation for the international researchers, key-note speakers, academicians and experts who are making this event a successful reality.

The Physics Sessions were one of the main sessions associated with the 3rd Annual Conference on Information and Science, held on the 27th and 28th of December, 2023, at the University of Fallujah, bringing together a diverse group of researchers and Professors to share their latest findings and developments across various fields of physics and applied physics.

The Physics session received 73 papers categorized into three distinct scientific fields: Medical and Nuclear Physics, Material Physics, and Theoretical Physics. Each field represents a vital area of research contributing to the advancement of knowledge and technology. The peer review was conducted by 2-3 reviewers from different countries for each paper, to ensure the high quality and relevance of the research presented.

Sabah I. Hamadi

Conference Chair
University of Fallujah

Guest Editors:

Dr. Ahmed H. Ali (PhD), University of Fallujah, Fallujah, Anbar, IRAQ,
Email address: dr.ahmedphysics@uofallujah.edu.iq

Dr. Omer K. Jasim Mohammad (PhD), Director of QA, University of Fallujah, Fallujah, Anbar, IRAQ
Email address: omerk.jasim@uofallujah.edu.iq